Dear Allen:

I send you herewith what I consider one of the most important and significant books that has ever come to my attention. It is Grenville Clark's treatise, "World Peace through World Law," written over a seven year period in collaboration with Professor Louis B. Sohn of the Harvard Law School.

It is my hope that the day will come when all the United Nations and particularly the great nations of the world will realize that world peace requires world law. To that end, the authors have given us a carefully studied blueprint to show how the United Nations can serve the cause of a just and durable world peace through enforceable law to stop war.

I hope you will read this book and would appreciate your comments.

Faithfully yours,

James N. Rosenberg
